School of Sport and Exercise Sciences

The School of Sport and Exercise Sciences is a leading department for the study of sport that is friendly, dynamic and innovative. Based on the University of Kent's award-winning Medway Campus we are an ambitious academic department set up in 2001. Our aim is to establish the University of Kent as a premier institution for Sport and Exercise in teaching and research.

The School of Sport and Exercise Sciences delivers the University's undergraduate and postgraduate courses in sport-related subjects. Our undergraduate programmes consist of three BSc (Hons) programmes, Sport Therapy, Sports Science, and Sport and Exercise for Health; and a BA (Hons) in Sport and Exercise Management. At taught postgraduate level we currently offer an MSc in Sports Therapy and Rehabilitation, and in the Science of Optimal Performance. The School's postgraduate research programme has developed rapidly with approximately 30 part and full-time researchers. We also offer the University's first professional doctorate programme designed for experienced practitioners, in the Sport, Exercise and Health professions. As a consequence of recent growth and development we have more than doubled in size to over 450 students and eighteen academic staff. The University of Kent is the UK's European University and this is epitomised in our School with staff and students of many different nationalities.

Our staff have secured external funding for several important research projects and our external project partners include the Arthritic Association, British Cycling, Medway Council, Medway National Health Trust, the MOD, RFU, Science in Sport, Sport England, and UK Sport. The School has two main research groups focussed on Endurance, and Health and Exercise. Several of our staff have been involved in recent Olympic and Paralympic Games and/or working with Olympic and Paralympic teams.

The School of Sport and Exercise Sciences is based on the Medway Campus, but also has dedicated clinics and laboratories at nearby Medway Park Sports Centre. The campus is easily accessible from London and surrounding areas with a high-speed train service linking the Medway towns with St Pancras in central London. Our close proximity to the London Olympics venue has already provided top-class opportunities for our School. For example, the University of Kent contributed to the development of Medway Park, an £11 million project that has created a regional centre of sporting excellence and was an approved training camp venue for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games. As a consequence of this development the School of Sport and Exercise Sciences now has its own Sports Clinic, Rehabilitation Gym and Science laboratories, including a hypoxic environmental laboratory, blood and chemistry laboratory and a brain and respiratory laboratory within Medway Park. These spaces house approximately £1 million of cutting-edge research and teaching equipment that include an Alter-G treadmill, a 3D video analysis system, force pedals, ultra-sound imaging, near infrared spectroscopy, and a gait analysis system. Medway Park is also a venue that hosts major sporting events that have included World Cup and European Championships and the World Transplant Games. Accordingly, Sport and Exercise Sciences staff and students have access to first class facilities and the opportunity to work with leading international and local teams and athletes in a regional centre of excellence of sporting excellence.

It is the University's aim to create a well-managed, flexible working environment that supports staff and their families, promotes welfare, maintains working practices and provides a productive balance between work and life outside work. Operational needs must be taken into account, but managers are encouraged to be innovative in organising their team and respond positively to requests to alter working patterns to enable staff to fulfil more effectively their professional and personal commitments.
Childcare:	Oaks Day Nursery (Canterbury Campus): The Oaks Nursery based at the Canterbury Campus is an excellent benefit for staff and a great asset to the University. Places are offered on a first come first served basis and baby places are particularly limited so staff may wish to make contact as soon as their pregnancy is confirmed. The Workplace Nursery Salary Exchange Scheme (for users of the Oaks Nursery on Canterbury Campus) enables eligible staff to opt to receive a lower salary – a salary exchange – in return for the University paying an equivalent amount of his/her nursery fees, via an amendment to contract. This arrangement means staff agree to receive a lower amount of gross pay and in return will be provided with free (or part thereof) workplace nursery places.
